LAWS OF BRIDGE PSYCHIC BIDS

Many people hate 'psyches' but Law 73E states a player may appropriately attempt to deceive an opponent through call or play as long as there is no concealed understanding. Anyone who psyches must report the psyche to the director, and this is passed to the recorder. This is to ensure that players do not psyche so regularly with one partner that it has become an understanding, or that players do not psyche so regularly against the same opponents that it has become unsporting.

The Otago Bridge Club rules that you may psyche only on your own division night against players of the same ability, and never on mixed occasions such as Friday day time, Saturday night or Charity one session tournaments.

There is no such restriction for A or B point tournaments even if they are graded, although again one would not expect an open player to psyche against a less experienced player.

MEMBERSHIP

We record with regret the resignation of Keith Kendall who took bridge lessons in 2013 and has been playing the last 4½ years in the Intermediate Division. We are sorry to lose Keith who has been a great supporter of Wednesday night sessions and will be missed by all his friends there.
